This document contains information about the technologies that enable this Application to achieve the purposes described below. These technologies allow the Owner to collect and store information (for example, through the use of Cookies) or use resources (for example, by running a script) on the User's device when the User interacts with this Application.

For simplicity, in this document these technologies are briefly defined as "Tracking Tools", unless there is a reason to differentiate.

For example, while Cookies can be used in both web and mobile browsers, it would be inappropriate to talk about Cookies in the context of mobile applications, since they are Tracking Tools that require the presence of a browser. For this reason, within this document, the term Cookies is used only to specifically indicate that particular type of Tracking Tool.

Some of the purposes for which Tracking Tools are used may also require the User's consent. If consent is given, it can be freely revoked at any time by following the instructions in this document.

This Application uses Tracking Tools managed directly by the Owner (commonly called "first-party" Tracking Tools) and Tracking Tools that enable services provided by third parties (commonly called "third-party" Tracking Tools). Unless otherwise specified within this document, such third parties have access to the respective Tracking Tools.

The duration and expiration of Cookies and other similar Tracking Tools may vary depending on the settings set by the Owner or each third-party provider. Some of them expire at the end of the User's browsing session. In addition to what is specified in the description of each of the categories listed below, Users can obtain more detailed and updated information on the duration, as well as any other relevant information - such as the presence of other Tracking Tools - in the privacy policies of the respective third-party providers (via the links provided) or by contacting the Owner.
